Farmingville, NY - On March 26, Supervisor Ed Romaine toured the 12,000 square foot future home of Yaphank-based Maehr Industries which is currently under construction and scheduled to open in mid-May. The new $1.3 million facility will allow the company to move from its current location in Yaphank, expand the business and increase their workforce. The Town's Industrial Development Agency provided support in the form of property tax, sales tax and recording tax abatements. The Supervisor toured the facility with Maehr Industries President Mike Maehr, Laura Maehr and Brookhaven Director of Economic Development and CEO of the Town's Industrial Development Agency CEO Lisa Mulligan.

"By expanding their business and creating more jobs, Mike and Laura Maehr are helping to move our local economy forward," said Supervisor Romaine, "I look forward to celebrating the grand opening of their new facility and thank them for doing business in Brookhaven Town."

Maehr Industries is a contract machine shop specializing in close tolerance machined parts made on computerized numerical control mills and lathes for aircraft, communications, and other industries.
